

Cecilia Taiana, Ph.D., is a psychoanalyst in Ottawa, Canada. In 2024, she conducted a workshop for psychoanalysts and candidates at the Psychoanalytische Institut Berlin (PaIB), introducing the medieval practice of versiprose—substituting prose with verse—and exploring its application in psychoanalytic sessions by transforming session prose into poetic form. Her most recent articles, part of a trilogy, are on What does poetry offer psychoanalysis? Robert Frost's Sound Sense, CJP, Spring 2022, and T.S. Eliot's Concept of Tradition, CJP, Fall 2022. The third article is on Wallace Stevens, Connoisseur of Chaos, and his notion of Motion, CJP, Spring 2025. Also, 'Day's Residues': One Vertex among Multiple Vertices, August 2022 in the Journal of the American Psychoanalytic Association. For two of her previous articles, she received the Dr. Douglas Levin Prize (2014) and the Dr. Miguel Prados Prize (2017), awarded by the Canadian Psychoanalytic Society.
